

This is the main page when you enter/load the page. As you can clearly see, the cursor is a paint brush. The font is sans-serif to embrace the ideas of modernism in the face of classical backlash. The Max Bill and Tschichold argument parallels what I believe this project's purpose is. I want users to take the information presented and change the broken ideals and standards in the American educational industry.